MERIDIAN ELLIPSE EARNS BEST PRODUCT AT TECHNOLOGY DESIGNER PERFORMANCE HOME AWARDS 2024

The latest product to come from Meridian's extreme engineering, Ellipse, has merited success at the Technology Designer Performance Home Awards for 2024, being awarded the Best Product. This award is the second international accolade Ellipse has received, and the first award in the design build industry.

Technology Designer Magazine – the publication behind the Technology Designer Performance Awards - is the leading authority in the design-build community for its expertise in smart home technology, which acknowledges brands that excel in future-thinking and innovative products.

The awards recognise innovation in three key categories: technology, design and user experience - celebrating smart home products that meet the visions and expectations of brands and homeowners. The judging process takes into consideration the product's visual, operational and experiential synergy within the user's space. Ellipse meets and beats the expectations of integrators, distributors, industry professionals and journalists as a market leading high-end all-in-one DSP streaming speaker, the first of its kind manufactured by Meridian.

"It is a great honour to receive this accolade from the judging panel at the Technology Designer Performance Home Awards," comments John Buchanan, CEO of Meridian. "Ellipse exhibits multifaceted advancement, compacting impressive sound quality and unique engineering in a visually aesthetic form factor. The Meridian team is immensely proud of the product we've created, and the gratification Ellipse is receiving solidifies our confidence in this product."

Ellipse boasts a complete Meridian sound system in a luxury and compact elliptical form factor. Encompassing Meridian's extreme engineering, it delivers exceptional sound quality and longevity, enabling consumers to enjoy Meridian sound in more rooms. Incorporating twelve of Meridian's unique DSP technologies, including the first use of Meridian's 'Bass & Space' stereo enhancing processing in a home audio product, users benefit from an optimised soundstage combined with maximised bass performance.

The judging panel at the Technology Designer Performance Home Awards comprised of global industry experts, including Senior Technology Designer Magazine personnel, award-winning design and construction specialists, technology, home theatre, and architecture experts. With this achievement, the Ellipse excels excellence across the board in its design, composition, integration and engineering, and positions Meridian as an innovator in smart home technology.
